- Multiple monitor support - Screen saver & logon screen - Desktop Lock & Password Protection - Desktop Lock for touchscreens - Desktop Lock for mouse - Call home button with desktop lock - Desktop lock password protection - Pin Home button to desktop - Screen saver & logon screen - Desktop Lock - Logon screen on desktop - Lock Screen & Password - Laptop Lock - Remote desktop lockout - Port Forwarding - High performance workstation - Multiple monitor support 9Locker Review: The program can be used by both mouse and touchscreen users, hence it makes it even more convenient. It also supports different monitors, so you can place the picture anywhere on your desktop. The last thing that would make a lock screen is to be needed is to have the application in system tray and you can avoid that by having it set to automatically hide. The utility allows you to set a pattern which will be displayed on your screen when you want to lock it, but you can also add a password that will be used to unlock it. If you forget the password or you wish to have remote access to the desktop, you can always use the email notification option. And of course, as the software is designed for a mouse user, we suggest to choose the first option and use the second for touchscreen users who are not familiar with the software. In case you want the program to play a sound notification, select one among the list of options that are available. Another feature we liked is the possibility to hide the logon line, so you can keep the space on your screen for other types of images. We were also impressed with the multiple monitor support, as we can have access to the desktop using the Desktop Lock application on other devices. All in all, 9Locker is a tool that allows you to keep a neat and comfortable lock screen. Microsoft Office 2007 is an office suite made for Windows users.
